APPENDIX B ADDENDUM METHODOLOGY, CONTINUED

The following table lists the approximately 3,700 local governments surveyed in online databases including the American Legal Publishing, General Code E-Code, LexisNexis Municipal Code, and Municode, and on local governments' websites, organized by state. This information is important not only to show the scope of the research, which covers a significant number of local governments in all fifty states, but also as an indication of which localities were not reached in this survey.

The heading row of the table indicates the name of each database searched, the total number of local governments searched at the time the search was conducted, and the date the search was completed. (Note that the information for localities included in each database is accurate only as of the date the search was conducted, April and August of 2008, as noted)

Results are organized by state and separated by database within the results column, preceded by the number of local governments in the state that publish code in the indicated database. An entry of "No Code" means that no local governments within that state publish code in the indicated database as of the date the search was completed. To determine if a particular city or county was included in the survey, look for that locality by state. If it does not appear in any of the five entries in the state's row, it was not included in the survey and you should consult the locality's code directly.
